You instinctively rebel against the crudeness of a foundry-finished bronze, aluminum or nickel-silver tablet which may show up on one of your jobs at any time, seemingly without regard for airtight specifications. We submit that there is no excuse for the existence of an inferior tablet, when for a very few dollars more "CINCINNATI METALCRAFTS" will insure you against unsightly blemishes and positively assure you of hand-chasing of the finest.

It's all a matter of buying under a brand name that represents superior hand-tooled tablets at reasonable prices, as distinguished from tablets with letters and borders practically unfinished, i. e., just as they come from the moulds. Foundries, generally speaking, do not have facilities for chasing. But "CINCINNATI METALCRAFTS" has its own foundry, its own corps of skilled hand-chasers, and its own oxidizing department, in addition to its own complete pattern shop, ALL UNDER ONE ROOF.

TO DETERMINE SIZES AND CAPACITIES

The less expensive bronze, aluminum and nickel-silver tablets and nameplates are customarily cast from patterns set up with either the Classic or the Deep Block letters shown at the right. While we have other styles of letters, these two are the prime favorites with architects.

CLASSIC

DEEP BLOCK (P.W.A.)

However, it should be clearly understood that we can and do make tablets with hand-carved letters, as well as with Old English and Oval Architectural letters.

We honestly believe that our prices for either hand-lettered or "stock" design tablets are very reasonable indeed. Your inquiries are solicited on that basis.

To detail and correctly estimate the capacity of a bronze tablet IF standard design pattern letters are to be utilized, we give below a handy yardstick. Ten letters will occupy spaces as listed; each punctuation mark and each space between words counts as one letter.
